

To whom it may concern

8 February 2011

Mike Landay has been providing the EPO Language Service with Japanese-to-English translations on a freelance basis since July 2008. To date he has produced 55 translations of patent documents, all of which have met with our complete satisfaction. We consider ourselves fortunate to have him on our freelance panel and hope that our working relationship with him will continue for many years to come.

The documents handled by Mr Landay have been mainly in the following subject areas: industrial robots and automation, radio and mobile communications systems and devices, magnetic recording, electrical circuits, optical fibres, semiconductor devices, mechanical devices, electronics and electronic devices, optoelectronics and optoelectronic devices, lasers, vehicle safety systems, power tools, magnetics, control systems, liquid crystal displays, integrated circuits.
